Ian Matsumoto

🏠 Berkeley, CA   📱 808-679-7230   ✉ ianmat55@gmail.com

Dear Hiring Manager,

My name is Ian Matsumoto. I am a GIS Analyst, freelancer and programmer. Travelling to the Bay Area from my hometown of Honolulu HI, I am pursuing my passion for creative innovation through a career in technology. Carrying 5+ years of experience with GIS technologies, a love for computer science, and an exceptional work ethic I believe I can be a valuable asset to Kevala team.

The Carbon Analyst position appeals to my love of Environmental Science and my professional passion for computer science and mathematics. I have had a brief introductory experience involving carbon sequestration data during my volunteer work at the Mamoni Valley Preserve, and would be very excited to turn that into a long term position. I have intermediate experience with Python programming possesing just over one year of experience and am currently tutoring special needs kids on the subject. I also have beginner experience with web development and Java programming.

If you would consider me for this position, it would be a long term investment considering that I wholly believe in the mission statement, pushing for environmental sustainability and would ideally like to base my career on enviromental sustainabiliy through technology. Working at Tesla, I have had first hand expereince of this new wave of electronic vehicles and the slow transition away from fossil fuels. You can reach me by phone outside of normal 9PM - 5PM office hours and by email anytime. I look foward to hearing back from you.

Thank you for the consideration,

Ian Matsumoto